IRS Definition of Sick Pay

The IRS defines sick pay as any amount paid under a plan for employees because of an employee’s temporary absence from work due to injury, sickness or disability. The sick pay may be paid by either the employer or by a third party, such as an insurance company. Based on this definition, the IRS classifies the LTD, STD and SDI benefits paid to your employees as sick pay.

Taxation of Sick Pay Benefits

Internal Revenue Code (IRC) Section 105 indicates that LTD, STD and SDI benefits, as sick pay, are to be included in the gross income of employees if the employer pays part or all of the premium for the coverage and did not include the premiums on the employee’s gross income. In these situations, the disability benefits received by the employee are subject to federal taxation. Accordingly:

- If the employer pays the entire insurance premium, then the benefits received are 100 percent taxable to the employee
- If the employer pays a portion of the premium (pre-tax) and the employee pays the balance with post-tax dollars, then the benefits are taxable in the same proportion as the percentage of the premium paid by the employer
- If the employer pays a portion of the premium (pre-tax) and the employee pays the balance with pre-tax dollars through a Section 125 Cafeteria Plan, then the benefits received are 100 percent taxable to the employee
- If the employer pays nothing and the employee pays the entire premium with post-tax dollars, then the benefits received are not taxable
- If the employer pays nothing and the employee pays the entire premium with pre-tax dollars, then the benefits received are 100 percent taxable to the employee

For additional detailed information about the taxation of sick pay or disability benefits, refer to the chart below and to IRS Publication 15-A, Employer’s Supplemental Tax Guide.

Employee Pays Portion of the Insurance Premium with Post-tax Dollars

When the employee pays a portion of the insurance premium with post-tax dollars, then any disability benefits received are taxable in the same proportion as the percentage of the premium paid by the employer. According to IRS regulations, the percentage of premium paid by the employer is to be calculated using a three-year average.

For group policies in force three or more years, the three-year average refers to the three policy years before the calendar year in which the disability benefits are paid. For group policies in force less than three but more than one year, the percentage of the premium paid by the employer is based on the actual premium paid for the policy years in effect. For group policies in force less than one year, then a reasonable estimate of the percentage of the premium paid by the employer for the first policy year is used.

To calculate the taxable benefit amount, multiply the total disability benefits paid to the employee by the three-year average of the percentage of premium paid by the employer. This is done at the group level not the employee level.

For example, an employee receives an LTD benefit of $2,000 a month under a group policy paid for by both employer and employee contributions. For the three policy years before the employee became disabled, the employer paid an average of 70 percent of the total premium and employees paid the remaining 30 percent with post-tax dollars. As the employer paid 70 percent of the total premium, 70 percent of any monthly LTD benefit received, or $1,400 ($2,000 x 70 percent) in this example, is subject to taxation. The other 30 percent, or $600 in this example, of each monthly LTD benefit is not taxable as employees paid for this portion of the total premium with post-tax dollars.

If you change the percentage of the premium you pay, then you must also use the three-year average to determine the percentage of the disability benefit subject to taxation.

Owner Status and Taxation of Disability Benefits

Businesses that purchase accident and health policies, including group disability insurance, usually may consider the premiums for this coverage as a tax-deductible expense. The type of business entity and the employment status of the insured owner usually determine the tax consequences of any disability benefits received by that owner. Below are a few guidelines that apply to common business entities. Consult with a tax advisor for specific details about your particular situation.

Corporations
Owners who actively participate in a “C” corporation are considered employees. Thus, a corporation may treat premiums paid for disability coverage on shareholder employees and non-shareholder employees as a tax-deductible expense. When the corporation pays the entire premium, the disability benefits are taxable to the employees, even the owners.

Partnerships
In partnerships and other entities that are taxed as partnerships, including “S” corporations and limited liability companies, the owners are not considered employees. A business may treat premiums for disability insurance for employees as a tax-deductible expense. The cost of insurance for the owners is included in their gross income. Therefore, disability benefits received by a partner/owner are not taxable to the partner/owner. When the business pays the entire premium for employees, then the disability benefits are taxable to the employees.

Sole Proprietors
With a sole proprietorship, the owner and business are one and the same. A sole proprietor may treat premiums for employee disability insurance as a tax-deductible expense. The cost of the owner’s insurance is included in the owner’s gross income. Therefore, disability benefits paid to the owner are not taxable to the owner.

Tax Reporting Responsibilities

IRC Section 6051 (f) requires insurers to provide information to policyholders and plan sponsors to allow them to report on sick pay benefits paid to their employees. This includes the amount of disability benefits paid and taxes withheld from those benefits during the previous calendar year. It applies to benefits paid under both insured group policies and self-funded employer-paid plans administered through administrative services only (ASO) agreements. The Standard automatically provides this information to you with daily, monthly and annual reports. Refer to Policyholder/Plan Sponsor Reports for more information.

With the information provided on these reports, you are responsible for paying the employer share of applicable federal and state taxes, reporting and remitting taxes withheld and providing tax reporting forms to employees for disability benefits received from The Standard. To help you fulfill these responsibilities, The Standard automatically performs some of these tasks and offers a separate service agreement to perform some of the others for you. Refer to FICA & W-2 Tax Reporting Service Agreement for STD and SDI Customers for more information.

Policyholder/Plan Sponsor Responsibilities

You are responsible for the following unless you have a signed FICA & W-2 tax reporting service agreement with The Standard:

- Pay the employer share of Social Security and Medicare (FICA/Tier 1) taxes payable on insured STD and SDI benefits paid to your employees by The Standard
- Report the FICA/Tier 1 taxes withheld and the taxable amount of insured STD and SDI benefits on your Form 941 Employer’s Quarterly Federal Tax Return
- Prepare Form W-2 Wage and Tax Statements and provide to employees for STD or SDI benefits received from The Standard

In addition, you are always responsible for paying and reporting federal and state unemployment taxes, such as FUTA and SUTA, and any other miscellaneous payroll taxes due on LTD, STD and SDI benefits.

Standard Insurance Company Responsibilities

As a service to you and our other customers, The Standard:

- Pays the employer share of FICA/Tier 1 taxes payable on LTD and ASO STD benefits paid to your employees
- Reports the FICA/Tier 1 taxes withheld and the taxable amount of LTD and ASO STD benefits on our Form 941
- Prepares and provides W-2 forms to employees for LTD and ASO STD benefits received from The Standard
- Provides the annual Disability Income Report to you with information you need to prepare W-2 forms for employees for the insured STD and SDI benefits received from The Standard

If you have signed a FICA & W-2 tax reporting service agreement with The Standard, The Standard will:

- Pay the employer share of FICA/Tier 1 taxes payable on insured STD and SDI benefits paid to your employees
- Report the FICA/Tier 1 taxes withheld and the taxable amount of insured STD and SDI benefits on our Form 941
- Prepare and provide W-2 forms to employees for insured STD and SDI benefits received from The Standard

Refer to FICA & W-2 Tax Reporting Service Agreement for STD and SDI Customers for more information about the above services we offer to policyholders with single employer STD and SDI insurance plans.

FICA & W-2 Tax Reporting Service Agreement for STD and SDI Customers

Our Social Security and Medicare tax reporting service makes it easy for STD and SDI customers to fulfill their tax obligations on the benefits we pay to their disabled employees. With this service, The Standard:

- Calculates and pays the employer’s portion of Social Security and Medicare taxes due on insured STD and SDI benefits paid
- Deposits both the employee’s and employer’s portions of these taxes with the Federal Reserve System
- Provides the employer with daily, monthly and annual reports on benefit payments and tax withholding
- Prepares W-2 forms and mails to disabled employees
- Reports yearly totals to Internal Revenue Service and Social Security Administration

The Standard’s Social Security and Medicare tax service helps to make life easier for insured STD and SDI policyholders by:

- Relieving the employer of administrative paperwork, Social Security and Medicare tax payment and reporting responsibility
- Assuring timely payment and reporting of employer portion of these taxes on insured STD and SDI benefits
- Integrating and streamlining tax reporting for groups with LTD, STD and SDI coverages with The Standard
- Coordinating tax reporting with third-party payroll vendors as needed

To request this service or obtain more information about it, contact your insurance advisor or the Employee Benefits Sales and Service Office for your area at 800.633.8575. The Standard must receive, approve and implement the signed FICA & W-2 service agreement by December 15 for it to be effective for the following calendar year. Once established, the agreement remains in place for each full calendar year until you notify us in writing that you want to cancel it. In this case, the agreement will be discontinued effective January 1 of the year after we receive your request.
Policyholder/Plan Sponsor Reports

To fulfill our responsibility to provide you with information that allows you to report and pay taxes on sick pay benefits paid to your employees, The Standard provides two separate reports:

• Group Benefits Activity Report
• Disability Income Report

These reports, described and illustrated on the following pages, contain the information you need to fulfill your tax paying and reporting responsibilities.

When you receive these reports, we encourage you to:

• Verify that all individuals listed on the reports are your employees and that we have the correct spelling of their names and their correct Social Security numbers.
• Check the employer’s contribution percentage for accuracy. The reports reflect the percentage according to our records. Your employees will be taxed on the benefits they received based on this percentage.
• Notify us of any discrepancies you may find or if you have questions about any of the report information.

If you need assistance with the tax reports or have questions about them, please contact The Standard at 800.525.3973.

Policyholder/Plan Sponsor Reports

You may have the tax reports sent to one central location or individual within your organization responsible for managing your disability benefit programs or to separate, multiple locations or individuals. Unless advised otherwise, we send these reports to the location you have provided as your primary address.

If you want these reports sent to one or more locations other than your main address, then we identify these other locations using “administrative unit” or “tax unit” addresses.

For example, if you want information concerning benefit payments sent to one or more locations, we establish one or more administrative unit addresses for you. Similarly, if you want tax-related information sent to one or more locations, we establish one or more tax unit addresses for you.

When a claim for disability benefits is received, we assign it to the appropriate administrative and tax units so that benefit and tax payment data are captured and reported on the appropriate reports and delivered to the correct location.

If we establish administrative unit addresses for your organization, we send the monthly Group Benefits Activity Reports to those units with the appropriate employees for each unit reflected on the reports.

If we do not establish any administrative or tax unit addresses for you, then all of the reports go to your primary address. Please refer to the chart below for a summary of this information.

You can access on demand FICA data by pulling the “STD Claims Run & FICA Report” or “Payment Detail (STD/STAT)” report from AdminEase.

Group Benefits Activity Report

The Standard generates the Group Benefits Activity Report at the end of each month in which claims activity occurs. It provides a summary of all LTD, STD and SDI benefit payments made to disabled employees during the prior month, along with FICA/Tier 1 tax and other deductions withheld from benefits.

If we have established one or more administrative unit addresses for you, each location receives this report, with information for only those employees associated with that specific administrative unit address. Otherwise, we send this report to your primary address.

When you receive the monthly Group Benefits Activity Report, we encourage you to:

- Verify that the individuals listed on it are your employees and that their names and Social Security numbers are correct.

Disability Income Report

The Standard generates the annual Disability Income Report after the end of each calendar year to report to you the amount of LTD, STD and SDI benefits paid to disabled employees. On the Disability Income Report you will find information about each disabled employee who received disability benefits at any time during the prior calendar year. It includes employee name, address, Social Security number, along with yearly totals for benefit payments and all taxes withheld and adjusted during the previous year, from January 1 through December 31.

If we have established one or more tax unit addresses for you, each location receives this report, with information on only those employees associated with that specific tax unit address. Otherwise, we send the Disability Income Report to your primary address.

If you use an outside payroll vendor, please notify your vendor that you will receive the Disability Income Report with disability sick pay benefit information for the prior year in early January. Your vendor should not close your payroll books until after you receive this report. Failure to inform your vendor about this could result in your vendor charging you additional processing fees.

When you receive the annual Disability Income Report, you should prepare a W-2 form for disability benefits received by each disabled employee listed on the report, unless The Standard will be doing this. If The Standard will prepare a W-2 form for disability benefits received by an employee listed on the report, “We Prepared W-2” appears under the employee's name and address.

As a reminder, The Standard automatically prepares W-2 forms for your employees for the following disability benefits they receive:

- All LTD benefits
- All ASO STD benefits
- All insured STD and SDI benefits covered under group policies with signed FICA & W-2 tax reporting service agreements

The taxable amount shown on the Disability Income Report is calculated by multiplying the total benefits issued for the year by the taxable percentage. The Standard relies upon the information you supply about premium contributions to determine the taxable percentage.

If the taxable percentage or any other information on the report is incorrect, please immediately notify The Standard so that all current and future tax statements and reports will be corrected. For any W-2 forms you may be preparing where the taxable percentage is incorrect on the report, you will need to recalculate the taxable amount using the correct taxable percentage.
Your Federal Tax ID#
Please notify us if this number is incorrect or missing.

Indicates type of insurance coverage.

Do not prepare a tax statement for these benefits. The employee will receive a W-2 form from The Standard.

Taxable %
The portion of benefit considered taxable. Please notify us immediately if this is incorrect.
Disability Benefits Frequently Asked Questions

We already prepared a W-2 form for the LTD, STD or SDI benefits one of our employees received from The Standard. The Disability Income Report shows that The Standard also prepared a W-2 form for this employee. What should we do?

If you mistakenly prepare a W-2 form for disability benefits for an employee for whom The Standard also prepared a W-2 form, you will need to amend your tax reports to prevent double reporting of the benefits to the IRS. Please contact your tax consultant for further information or advice about your specific situation.

What about disabled employees no longer on our payroll?

Under IRC Section 6051(f), insurers are responsible for providing employers with information on disability benefits paid to employees, while employers are responsible for preparing W-2 forms for these employees, even if they are no longer employed with the employer. As a service to our customers, The Standard automatically prepares W-2 forms for LTD and ASO STD benefits received by disabled employees. If you have a signed FICA & W-2 tax reporting service agreement with The Standard, we prepare W-2 forms for disabled employees no longer on your payroll who received insured STD and SDI benefits in the prior year. If neither of these situations apply, then the employer is responsible for preparing W-2 forms for the insured STD and SDI benefits their employees received, even if they are not currently employed with the employer.

Do we still have to provide W-2 forms to disabled employees for their regular wages?

Yes. The Standard prepares W-2 forms for disability benefits only. You must prepare W-2 forms for any regular wages you paid to employees during the year. We suggest you contact your tax consultant for further information or advice about your particular situation.

Why does our Disability Income Report have a field labeled “Federal”?

If part or all of an employee’s disability benefits are subject to taxation, the employee may request that The Standard withhold a portion of benefits for federal income taxes. This voluntary withholding may ease the employee’s obligation when federal income taxes are due.

To have federal income taxes withheld from their disability benefits and remitted to the government, employees must complete and sign a Form W-4S and submit it to The Standard. The Standard will remit amounts withheld to the government and report these under The Standard’s name and tax identification number. The total amount withheld for the calendar year is listed on the Disability Income Report next to the label “Federal” and should be reflected on any W-2 form prepared for the employee.

For ASO STD plans, The Standard withholds federal income tax based on either the current IRS mandatory tax rate or the disabled employee’s Form W-4.

How do we calculate the Social Security and Medicare wages to enter on the W-2 form?

If Social Security, Tier 1 or Medicare tax was withheld from STD or SDI benefits during the calendar year and you are responsible for the tax reporting, you must determine the Social Security, Tier 1 or Medicare wage amounts and enter them in the appropriate box on the W-2 form.

Generally, you can divide the amount of Social Security tax withheld by 0.0620 to get the Social Security Wage amount and divide the amount of Medicare tax withheld by 0.0145 to get the Medicare Wage amount.
If we are responsible for tax reporting, how do we balance our quarterly Form 941 and the W-2 forms we produce for STD and SDI benefits?

When you prepare your quarterly Form 941, include the taxable benefit data and Social Security, Tier 1 and Medicare tax withholding data from the monthly Group Benefits Activity Report. Verify that the information reflected on the Form 941 matches the W-2 forms you produce.

To balance the Form 941 and W-2 forms, only report on the Form 941 those taxable disability benefits and Social Security or Medicare tax amounts that you will include on the W-2 forms you will prepare. Do not report any LTD or ASO STD benefits information as The Standard will do this. Also, be sure to take into account any insured STD or SDI benefit payment adjustments.

You may want to refer to the IRS Instructions for Forms W-2 and W-3 for more information. You may view or download these instructions from the IRS Web site at https://www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/iw2w3.pdf.

What if our Form W-3 transmittal or magnetic tape has been prepared and mailed before we receive the Disability Income Report?

Your options will vary depending on your situation. Contact your local IRS or Social Security office. You may also want to refer to:

Guide to Taxation of PFL & PFML Benefits

Paid Family and Medical Leave (PFML) is becoming an increasingly more widespread benefit as additional jurisdictions pass legislation to support their employees. With each jurisdiction providing different benefits and without regulations or guidance provided at the federal level it can be challenging to keep track of each state’s requirements. The Standard has assembled the following guidance after review of each state’s legislation and will continue to expand and change as more state plans are added. For state specific details please make sure to consult with your tax advisor.

Taxation of PFL & PFML Benefits

One of the challenges faced by not having federal level regulations is understanding how these benefits should be taxed. States are writing their guidelines under unemployment law which generally treats the benefits as taxable regardless of contribution unless specifically written unto the language of the regulations. Below is a summary of the states where The Standard offers PFML or PFL:

Tax Reporting & Responsibility

The Standard provides the following tax reports for employers, these reports are similar to the existing tax reports available for disability benefits covered previously on this guide.

• FICA report
• Monthly Activity Report
• Annual Income Report

The Standard offers FICA & W-2 Tax Reporting Service Agreements for PFML products similar to the agreement that we offer for STD & DBL products. If the FICA Service Agreement is selected The Standard will complete the matching of the Employer FICA taxes and prepare the tax statements. Employers who opt out of the FICA service agreement will need to use these reports to prepare the tax statements for their W2s and complete the employer portion of FICA.

PFML Reporting
To fulfill our responsibility to provide you with information that allows you to report and pay taxes on benefits paid to your employees, The Standard provides three separate reports:

• PFML Cumulative FICA Tax Activity Report
• PFML Monthly Group Activity Report
• PFML Income Report

These tax reports will not be mailed but rather they will be on AdminEase for all employers to pull on demand. You can download the information on PDF or CSV format. When you obtain your reports, we encourage you to:

• Verify that all individuals listed on the reports are your employees
• Notify us of any discrepancies you may find or if you have questions about any of the report information.
